OT05: Your style seems immersed in the aesthetic. Are you now, or have you ever been, much of a gamer? If so, what are some of your favorites and/or what have you been playing lately?

LUCE: I've always been a gamer, even from a very young age hah. I'm super into atmospheric and horror games such as Silent Hill and Dead Space but conversely I do love old school FPS's like Quake and Unreal and Racing games and more than likely, if a game has zombies, I'd probably like it hah!

OT05: Are there any new toys or tech that you're enjoying or interested in?

LUCE: So recently I've been collecting CRT's again and have gotten up to five, including a big 21 inch Trinitron that I think I pulled a muscle while bringing into my apartment haha. Other than that I've been really into upcycling old tech into more usable kits, like turning chromebooks into full windows laptops and things like that, making old tech usable again in our current modern world of tech

OT05: Your music is available at lucehouse.bandcamp.com, and soundcloud.com/lucehouse. Do you have any other sites, projects, or plans that you would like to promote?

LUCE: I've got quite a few projects, one of these days I gotta make a linktree at some point, but I make ambient music under the name nocturnal receiver <https://nctrnlrcvr.bandcamp.com/>, I also run the netlabels WRKTRAX <https://wrktrax.bandcamp.com/> which specializes in more Y2K/ Neo-Y2K vibes and aesthetics and Micro Rave Recordings <https://microraverec.bandcamp.com/> which is a more chiptune oriented netlabel! I also design Y2K/ Goth inspired clothes with a couple of friends under the name AKI-YO <https://aki-yo-binary.creator-spring.com/>.
